Dear Mortals,

I know you are weak and helpless creatures, so I was surprised to find that you had completed the Pandora's box task so well. Did you realise that it was I, the almighty Zeus, who set you that challenge?

As a reward for this achievement, I hereby declare that you will all be anointed as new gods. Am I not a generous ruler?

However, you need to consider my gift carefully. With your knowledge of the gods who rule over you, each with different characteristics and powers, you should consider the following:

- What will you represent?
- What will your powers be?
- What type of character will you have?
- What will your symbol be?
- What do you wish your statue to look like?

Once I am satisfied that you have given this the thought it demands, I will grant you your new status.

But, mortals, beware! Remember that I, the all-powerful Zeus, watch over you at all times. Do not displease me or you will be sure to feel my wrath. You will not like me when I am angry!

Yours expectantly,

Zeus
